

Chantelle Houghton regrets her 32E breasts

Celebrity Big Brother Chantelle Houghton published in a interview her regrets for her breast augmentation She told the new issue of Heat magazine: 'They're just too big. Now I just want to hide them. I thought I wanted to go up to that size and I loved them at the time, but now I wish I'd never had them done.' 'I'm very bad at making decisions and I just change my mind really quickly, so I do regret it now. Chantelle has also had fillers injected into her face and once said she 'couldn't live without hair extensions.' After her high-profile divorce from Samuel Preston two year ago, Chantelle Houghton transformed her image from ditzzy girl-next-door to pneumatic glamour model. But just 18 months after undergoing cosmetic surgery to boost her chest from a B to 32E, the 25-year-old reality star admits she is having second thoughts. She is hoping to distance herself from the WAG image following her recent split from footballer Jermain Defoe and is even considering getting her breasts reduced. She has previously admitted that her dramatic transformation came at a low point in her life after the demise of her 10-month marriage. 'Looking back,' she says, 'I did it for the attention. I realise it was a cry for help.' She now visits a physio twice a week for back pain caused by the heavy implants. She has said: 'They're taking over my life.'
